

Getting medical treatment for work-related injuries

Injured while on the job or working in lab? Some simple instructions:

A. Emergency medical attention

Important examples:

- Direct contact or exposure to chemicals (liquid or vapor) of an unknown nature
- Acute exposure to chemicals with highest level hazard rating (GHS level 1)
- 3rd degree burns or cryogenic equivalent (frostbite)
- Injury resulting in profuse bleeding or pain
- Eye injuries

What to do:

1. Use eyewash or safety shower, if appropriate
2. Call 911.
3. Arrange for transport to an emergency care center (by ambulance):
 - Franciscan Health East
 - IU Health Arnett
4. If known hazard, print out MSDS sheets to inform medical staff.
5. (follow-up) Supervisor/PI submits a First Report of Injury.

B. Non-emergency medical attention

Some examples:

- Serious cut or tissue trauma, warranting medical examination
- Persistent headache, nausea, or irritation, cause unknown
- Mild to moderate irritation, low-level chemical exposure suspected

What to do (all staff, graduate students, AND undergraduates on payroll*):

1. Arrange for transport to the appropriate medical center, as follows:
 - Daytime (8 am – 6 pm): ROCC (Unity Health Plaza, Lafayette)
 - Early evening (6–8 pm) & weekends (8 am – 8 pm): Franciscan ExpressCare West
 - Night/early AM: Franciscan Health East or IU Health Arnett
2. If known hazard, print out MSDS sheets to inform medical staff.
3. (follow-up) Supervisor/PI submits a First Report of Injury.
